Leadership Management Australia opens its 37th branch on Sydney's North Shore

North Shore organisations can now access leading-edge corporate training and people development from a fellow local business, following the establishment of Leadership Management Australia's 37th branch on the upper North Shore.

Founded 35 years ago and now with a team of more than 160 people across Australia and New Zealand, LMA works with over 1600 clients to improve their productivity, performance and leadership.

LMA Oliver Williams, which has opened its doors in Gordon, will develop close relationships with the upper North Shore business community, according to director Penny Oliver.

"LMA is known for its dynamic local business breakfasts on workplace management issues, which are particularly relevant as the Australian economy improves and competition for labour intensifies.

"We intend staging several such breakfasts in 2011, as we believe North Shore businesses and local government will gain valuable tools to identify and capitalise on shifts in the economy, lead organisational change and build a competitive advantage using their most important asset: their people."

LMA's clients include government, small to medium enterprises and major corporates such as ANZ, Boral, BlueScope Steel, Leighton Holdings, Cotton On Group and DHL Worldwide.

"LMA programs have been developed and refined over 35 years, and are well proven in their delivery of measurable and long term results," Ms Oliver says.

Training programs include leading and managing for results, success strategies for team leaders and supervisors, performance development, effective team dynamics, success strategies and the sales edge.

LMA programs reflect the company's philosophy of developing the total person by enhancing their personal and life skills. Many participants are able to quickly accept greater responsibility or progress to more senior roles, improving both their own and the organisation's performance.
